

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A dot code is printed on a sheet of paper by using a first printing plate and a first ink. Immediately thereafter, a code coat is formed by printing to cover the dot code, by using a second printing plate and a second ink having a property of not affecting the operation of reading the code.

PRINTED IN U.S.A. BY RICOH COMPANY, LTD.